

SMALL-TOWN PASTORS' CONFERENCE

A conference tailored to pastors and wives in town and country settings

SEEKING REVIVAL IN RURAL AMERICA

April 20-22, 2009 • Morton, Illinois

OVER 65 YEARS OF PLANTING AND STRENGTHENING CHURCHES IN SMALL TOWNS

“Small Town Transformed”

Wouldn't you like for this to be the headline in your local paper?

It seems everywhere I go, town and country pastors are yearning for revival in their churches and communities. I run into pastors all over who are dedicated and working hard, some for many years, but many without the obvious blessing of God – pastors who are lamenting, crying out to God, asking Him to pour water on parched ground.

Imagine God showering His blessing on rural places. Imagine people under conviction because of their sin. Imagine new churches being established and established churches being revitalized. Imagine witnessing numerous conversions. Imagine the media giving favorable reports on what is happening. It has happened before; it can happen again.

Our conference isn't meant to make it happen – we're not going to attempt to manufacture a revival. Rather, we invite you to join us as we talk about revival, learn about it, ask God to work, and make ourselves available to Him should He choose to work through us. We are seeking a heaven-sent, Spirit-produced, Bible-centered revival.

Come seek with us!

Will You Not Revive Us Again, O Lord?
Walter Kaiser

The psalmist calls upon God to once again do what He has done in the past, that is to bring new life and vitality into the relationships of God's people with the living Lord. This work of God will not only bring peace and the mighty presence of God, it will also restore harmony and joy among believers as grace and truth meet each other.

It's Time to Renew the Work of God
Walter Kaiser

The prophet Haggai calls out for God to renew His work. The people's procrastination over building the house of God could not be blamed on Divine Providence, but on God's people's refusal to set priorities and their failure to get involved. A revived believing body will receive the enablement that comes from the Lord as His personal presence stirs them to return to the work of God.

Is There Hope for Revival in Rural America?

Jeff VanGoethem

The prophets Isaiah and Habakkuk ministered in the declining days of the southern kingdom of Judah. God's people were backslidden, spiritually sluggish, and in trouble with God. Yet, these men had hope for revival. Can we also dare to hope for our own troubled land and its diseased church?

Revival Principles...

Mark Bearden

Brokenness

God does not share His glory. In fact, He says there must be a heart of submission before He can powerfully work through us. In Christ we see the perfect display of this heart.

Pursuit of God

God rewards those who “diligently seek Him.” If we confuse the pursuit of anything – including ministry – with this pursuit, we will lose our spiritual orientation.

Necessity of Transparency

G. Campbell Morgan said: “You will never find in Scripture God getting angry at honesty, but you will find Him judging hypocrisy.” Transparency in life is an essential to God’s blessing.

Revival History...

John Hannah

The First Great Awakening, 1734-1735, 1740-1741

This is one of the most profound movings of the Spirit of God in British North America and part of the awakenings that swept the English-speaking world in the 18th century. It is the story of divine grace wrought by the mercy of God through the agency of caring pastors, gospel preaching, and concerts of prayer. It was the era of Jonathan Edwards, the Tennents, and George Whitefield. Like all such divine visitations, there was the blessing of fruit and the subversive activity of the devil’s minions.

The Second Great Awakening, 1787-1817

This was the first powerful moving of the Spirit after the birth of the United States. The challenges of false religions and political uncertainty formed the background of this mighty answer to prayer. There are lessons – positive and negative – as we face uncertain economic, political, and social days. The Awakening was so prolific that the nation was secured within a Christian consensus for nearly a century afterward. It was the stirring days of Timothy Dwight, Archibald Alexander, and Asahel Nettleton.

The Third Great Awakening – the Layman’s Prayer Revival, 1857-1859

With the threat of national division and civil strife, a small prayer meeting in a New York church conducted by an obscure layman lead to a prolific moving of God’s Spirit, drawing millions to Christ across the United States, British Isles, and mission stations around the globe. What is striking about this awakening is that it was deeply rooted in prayer with none of the emotional displays that often accompany awakenings and cause their decline and discredit.
