Nearly 70 Years of Planting and Strengthening Churches in Small Towns

Change Is

RON KLASSEN
RHMA Executive Director

This year's conference is about change. In today's small towns, change is a given. Change is happening. Change is happening at an increasingly rapid pace, even in places where the prevailing notion is that "nothing new ever happens here." Change is.

Much change needs to be initiated in town and country churches today. Many lack effective leaders. Many are not reaching unbelievers. Many show signs of stagnation and decline.

Perhaps equally as often, rather than initiating change we need to respond appropriately to change. Rural areas are experiencing changes on a scale never seen before – changes we are not seeking – and we are left with no choice but to respond to them. Change is.

In the midst of all the dialogue about change at our conference, we sense the need to underscore things that should not change. This is why Mark Dever will be with us, sharing the biblical constants that should be ever-present in our churches.

There's lots to talk about. Let's do it together!

Bring one of your lay leaders with you!

Because of the nature of this conference, this one time we want to encourage you to bring one of your lay leaders with you. Note the special pricing on the "Registration" page. Because of space limitations, we must limit each church to sending just one lay leader or couple.

Tuesday Seminars

Change Topics – Change Situations

Today our seminars focus on different situations which arise in town and country churches that call for change. Each is a one-hour, stand-alone seminar. Each will be repeated. This means you may choose two of the following:

Stresses That Change Puts on People

For 20 years Garth has served as a counselor at the Barnabas Center in Peoria, Illinois, for 10 years as the Center's Director. Much of his counseling is with people who are in the midst of stress. A former potato farmer in rural Maine, Garth understands our ministry contexts.

Strategies for Intentional Change

Jim is Professor Emeritus at Bethel Seminary and a former small-town pastor. His teaching specialties through the years include town and country ministry and leading through change. This seminar will bring these two specialties together.

Pastor Change: When Changing Conditions Indicate It Is Best for the Pastor to Move On

Over a span of nearly 30 years, Jeff served four town and country pastorates. He has done a lot of thinking about pastoral transitions. Just recently he went through another move, this time to a city pastorate – to Scofield Church in Dallas, Texas, which he serves as Senior Pastor.

Tuesday Seminars continued

Change Topics – Change Situations

Barney
Wells

Personal Change: How to Stay Current in a Fast-Changing World

During his 34 years of country church ministry, Barney did not allow isolation to turn him into an extinct dinosaur. Today as a seminary professor and professor in RHMA's TACT (Town and Country Training) Program, he continues to be intentional about staying on the cutting edge. Barney is co-author of Leading Through Change; Shepherding the Town and Country Church in a New Era.

Jim
Rodgers

Church Facility Change: Avoiding Hazards, Affordable Solutions

In his role as Architectural Pastor at Church Building Consultants, Inc., Jim blends his background as an architect and small-town pastor to help churches assess and address facility issues, with the goals of enhancing ministry and improving church health.

Denny
Schlappi

Constitution Change: Revising a Long-Held Church Constitution

Denny has served 23 years on the pastoral staff at New Castle Bible Church – located in the cornfields near Mackinaw, Illinois. His master's degree research project focused on guiding a church through a major constitutional change – and then he did so not once but twice at NCBC.

Marty
Giese

Worship Change: Changing a Worship Style; Adding a Worship Service

Marty has pastored 34 years in two small-town churches. He has led each church through a change in worship style – one which had not experienced a substantial change in worship style during its 120 years of existence. Marty is co-author of Leading Through Change; Shepherding the Town and Country Church in a New Era.

Change Topics – Change Situations

Phil
Somers

Staff Change: Adding a Second Pastor, Ministry Director, or Administrative Assistant

Phil has seen his church in the Illinois corn-fields grow substantially during his 25 years as Senior Pastor. Through these years, New Castle Bible Church has gone from having a solo pastor to adding a number of new staff members.

Mark
Danielson

Moral Change: Ministering in the Midst of Diminishing “Wholesome Country Living”

Mark is RHMA's Director of Mission Ministries. Prior to this he worked bivocationally as a small-town church planter in Mullen, Nebraska, and Deputy Sheriff of Hooker County. This dual role provides a unique perspective on the moral and spiritual conditions of rural America.

Mike
Brubaker

Preaching Change: Connecting to a New Generation of Rural Listeners

Mike has served with RHMA for 20 years as a church planter in rural Connecticut. His recently-completed doctoral thesis focuses on preaching to this new audience of listeners.

Jonathan
Farrell

Technology Change: Emerging Possibilities and Ministry Potential

Jonathan is on the pastoral staff of Grace Church – the host church for this conference. He is a former country church assistant pastor. A "techno-geek," Jonathan provides leadership to a number of the technological aspects at Grace Church, and continues to weigh the appropriate ways to engage today's technologically-oriented culture for Christ.

McConnell

Rural Ministry 101

Wednesday Seminars

Change Topics – Changing Demographics

Today our seminars focus on the different people who are living in rural America. Statistical data tell us that less than 2% of the population is farmers, and 94% of the rural labor force is in non-farming vocations, and that lots of newcomers are moving in. This spells c-h-a-n-g-e! As on Tuesday, each is a one-hour, stand-alone seminar. Each will be repeated. This means you may choose two of the following:

Ethnic Change: My Neighbors Don't Speak English!

Since 1993 Chuck has been serving in the upper-Midwest region as an InterCultural Missionary with the Baptist General Conference, helping numerous, mostly rural, English-speaking churches reach Latinos and people of other ethnicities who have moved into their communities.

Economic Change: The Emergence of New Rural Poor and New Rural Rich

Barney has done considerable research on the new poor and rich who are moving into rural America today – very different from the traditional rural poor and rich. These people represent some of the most spiritually needy and unreached in our country.

Population Decline Change: Ministering Where People Are Moving Away

Prior to becoming Director at RHMA, Ron served two rural pastorates in communities that were in the midst of significant decline – one losing one-third of the population in just two years.

Wednesday Seminars continued

Change Topics – Changing Demographics

Marty
Giese

Rurbanization Change: These City People Are Different!

For many years Marty has pastored churches where rurbanization is happening big time as people have moved into the community from the Twin Cities of Minnesota. He did a master's degree research project on the subject and has discussed rurbanization in seminars all across the country.

Jim
Mason

Case Study: Learning from a Changing Community in Minnesota

Following several years as a small-town pastor, Jim lived in St. Paul, Minnesota, for many years, as he taught at Bethel Seminary. He then, along with a lot of other folks, mostly rurbanites, moved to small-town Minnesota. The country church he attends has done a marvelous job of transitioning to a very different population.

Jeff VanGoethem

Case Study: Learning from a Changing Community in Illinois

Twenty-some years ago, Jeff moved from an isolated rural pastorate to a traditional country/farm church located a few miles from Normal, Illinois. In this seminar you will have opportunity to see how this church with a rich tradition, and yet in decline because of a changing culture around it, successfully navigated through the delicate process of cultural transition.
